A special presentation of “MILK,” the award winning biography of Harvey Milk, will be shown on September 8 at 9 p.m., Evans Hall.

See below for biography information on Cleve Jones if you would like to include it on your web site.

Cleve Jones has been at the front lines of the global struggle against HIV for over 25 years. One of the first gay community activists to recognize and respond to the threat of AIDS, Mr. Jones helped found the San Francisco AIDS Foundation in 1983 and has remained a passionate and articulate spokesperson for people living with AIDS and a leader in the worldwide campaign to stop the epidemic.

A dynamic and inspiring public speaker, Mr. Jones travels extensively throughout the United States and around the world, lecturing at high schools, colleges, and universities. Most recently, he served as a historical consultant to Gus Van Sant’s November 2008 film “MILK.” The film stars Sean Penn as Harvey Milk and Emile Hirsch as Cleve Jones.
