

Naharpur Secondary School, Butwal, Nepal

Beth and Marianne presented two laptops and an LDC Projector on Monday, January 11, 2010

Thank you to all who contributed to this “OneBigBoost!”

From taxi, a half-mile walk: students help with our bags.

To this school between two rivers - in a flood plane - we must walk with the students over this suspension bridge

View from bridge of dry riverbed which floods during rainy season. They are building flood protection - very slowly... Note students walking to school.

Mr. Hom Bahadur Galami, School Board Director and businessman, leads the way.

Students walk:

Through a rice paddy...

By a homeless settlement...

By a herd of cattle...

...over rocks and ravines....
to the school

Principal Hari Pathik greets us with flowers at the gate

Excited and curious students, with teachers, line up to greet us in the presentation program.

Our translator stands ready

Marianne and Beth speak briefly and hand over the books and pencils to the teachers in sari “uniforms.”

Beth and Marianne Receive Beautiful Letters of Appreciation

After presenting the laptops and projector, flowers fill the empty suitcases...

Students invite us inside...

To see a very basic classroom: benches, tabletops and a chalk board...[isn't everyone looking angelic??]

Inside the teachers' room/office, Science Teacher, Mr. Kamel Gnawali, sets up the computers and projector while faculty members observe. He will provide a satellite internet connection on Fridays, he told us.

Time to leave - It was a most exciting morning!

Back over the flood walls...

And through the rice fields...

Looking back one last time, we see the entire school outside, waving good-bye. We are forever connected now - not only in memory but also by new tools that will enable these students to do more, see more, learn more about the world they will soon inherit. Thank you all! This would not be possible without you!
